Peru: A mass protest demonstration against the US is scheduled to take place near the US Embassy in Lima tonight, apparently with government approval. Organizers hope to turn out a crowd of about 20,000 to show support for President Velasco's tough line against the US on Peru's recent expropriation of large holdings of the International Petroleum Corporation (IPC). The IPC issue raises intense nationalistic emotions among Peruvians and the demonstration could get out of hand unless the government takes strict security measures.
